If you advise the homeless....By Phillip Taylor MBEOR THOSE WHO FEAR IT, READ THISAn appreciation by Phillip Taylor MBE and Elizabeth Taylor of Richmond Green ChambersIf you are called upon from time to time in a professional capacity to advise the homeless and their families, then make sure you acquire Homelessness and Allocations for your professional library. In this fast moving area of law, this book, now in its eighth edition, has established itself as the definitive guide to the rights of the homeless.One of the latest of the estimable Legal Action Groups adviser publications, Homelessness and Allocations robustly continues the LAGs ongoing mission to compile, write and publish meticulously researched works of reference, mainly for professional advisers -- legal practitioners, local government and housing officers, academics and the like -- or those of us, quite frankly, who are desperate. And there are few other conditions in life which occasion as much desperation as homelessness. Clear, succinct and accurate, Homelessness and Allocations sets the law in its context. There is much new material in this new edition, from the 2009 Code of Guidance on Housing to new guidance on intentional homelessness and mortgage arrears to additional means of providing housing. In the appendices you'll find the latest consolidated legislation and guidance. There is also, interestingly, a Note on late developments, which precedes the copious tables of cases, statutes, statutory instruments and European legislation. The book's publication date is February 2010. Homelessness is inherently a complex problem, comments the author, Andrew Arden QC, and deserves the maximum effort as the volume of cases makes clear, practitioners are more than willing to give it. If you are a practitioner in this difficult and complex area, you'll find Homelessness and Allocations, an essential and easy to use reference tool in your day to day practice.

New to this edition: Substantial revision of the chapter on allocations following the seminal decision of the House of Lords in Ahmad, and to include allocations by registered providers of social housing; Complete rewrite of chapter on immigration issues, and expanded coverage of additional means of providing housing to include the New Asylum Model (NASS); Extended coverage of duties under the Children Act 1989 following recent House of Lords decisions; New guidance on intentional homelessness and mortgage arrears; Coverage of numerous other important decisions, including those of the House of Lords in Aweys and Moran on the meaning of reasonable to continue to occupy for the purpose of defining homelessness and Holmes-Moorhouse on priority need and children, following the separation of parents.

'... an indispensable commentary on and guide to a complex and fast-moving area of the law: a must-have for academics, specialist practitioners and busy local government officers alike.' Solicitors Journal 'This is the book on the law relating to homelessness.' Law Society Gazette '... if you advise on homelessness, you will need this book. Buy it now'. Legal Aid News About the Author Andrew Arden QC is a full-time practitioner and head of Arden Chambers, London. He is a pioneer of housing (and homelessness) law, and has acted in many of the leading cases in addition to his writing. He is the general editor of the Housing Encyclopaedia, the Housing Law Reports and the Journal of Housing Law, as well as co-author of Arden and Partington's Housing Law, the Manual of Housing Law, Local Government Finance Law and Local Government Constitutional and Administrative Law (all Sweet Maxwell). Emily Orme is a barrister at Arden Chambers who undertakes both court and advisory work in the areas of housing, business tenancies, administrative and local government law. She has contributed articles to a number of publications including New Law Journal and Journal of Housing Law. Toby Vanhegan is a barrister at Arden Chambers who covers all areas of housing law, with special expertise in immigration and asylum law and the eligibility of immigrants and asylum-seekers for housing and other forms of social assistance.
