GeorgeVery clear and well presented, this is a textbook of high stature amongst the large body of works in this field3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. A must have for international law studentsBy PapillonYou cannot go wrong with this book when dealing with international law. The language is simple, clear and to the point. The chapters are thorough enough and cover topics such as Law of the Sea, State Immunity, Diplomatic Immunity, Sources of Law . . . all topics which are currently included in my school's International Law course. This book was recommended to me by a professor and it has lived up to my expectations.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. the book is good and well packagedBy Roy NgulubeAlthough the delivery was late, the book is good and well packaged. I recommend it to others for use

The seventh edition of Textbook on International Law offers students new to the subject, a concise and focused introduction to the essential topics of an international law course from the nature and sources of international law to the use of force and human rights. Dixon guides students through the legal principles and areas of controversy, bringing the subject to life with the use of topical examples to illustrate key concepts. The book incorporates helpful features including a glossary, chapter summaries and further reading. The seventh edition includes further discussion of topical areas such as international human rights law and international criminal law. It features a new chapter focusing explicitly on international criminal law. Online Resource CentreThe book is complemented by a website providing updates on case law and legislative developments, as well as annotated links to relevant websites.

"...the book as a whole can be recommended to all students and others coming to the subject with only the barest of basic legal knowledge."--New Law JournalAbout the AuthorMartin Dixon is a Fellow in Law at Queens' College, Cambridge, and a Reader in Law at the University of Cambridge. He has been a legal officer for the United Nations in Vienna, advises companies on questions of international law, and is co-author of Cases Materials on International Law.
