Tom Coppen : The Law of Arms Control and the International Non-Proliferation Regime (Nova Et Vetera Iuris Gentium Series a, Modern International Law) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Law of Arms Control and the International Non-Proliferation Regime (Nova Et Vetera Iuris Gentium Series a, Modern International Law):

Nuclear proliferation poses a serious threat to international peace and security. The non-proliferation regime is the body of public international law that aims to counter this threat. It has been a cornerstone of global security for decades. This book analyses its main instruments. The book focuses on the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty, international trade controls and the International Atomic Energy Agency. It describes the internal mechanics of these mechanisms, their development, and their strengths and weaknesses. It shows how they together are the basis of a political-legal order that is more than the sum of its parts, offering new insights on the role of international law in an area dominated by security-driven politics.

About the Author Tom Coppen obtained his Ph.D. degree at Utrecht University in 2016 and has authored various articles and chapters on nuclear proliferation and arms control law. He currently works as a senior policy officer at the Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
