Ninette Kelley, M. Trebilcock : The Making of the Mosaic: A History of Canadian Immigration Policy before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Making of the Mosaic: A History of Canadian Immigration Policy:

Immigration policy is a subject of intense political and public debate. In this second edition of the widely recognized and authoritative work The Making of the Mosaic, Ninette Kelley and Michael Trebilcock have thoroughly revised and updated their examination of the ideas, interests, institutions, and rhetoric that have shaped Canada's immigration history. Beginning their study in the pre-Confederation period, the authors interpret major episodes in the evolution of Canadian immigration policy, including the massive deportations of the First World War and Depression eras as well as the Japanese-Canadian internment camps during World War Two. New chapters provide perspective on immigration in a post-9/11 world, where security concerns and a demand for temporary foreign workers play a defining role in immigration policy reform. A comprehensive and important work, The Making of the Mosaic clarifies the attitudes underlying each phase and juncture of immigration history, providing vital perspective on the central issues of immigration policy that continue to confront us today.

'[This book] is a "keeper" for me because it's a thorough account of Canada's immigration policies ... Any reader interested in immigration to Canada now has a one-stop source for its history.' (Douglas Fisher, Toronto Sun) 'Its account of the development of Canadian immigration law integrates the who's, what's and when's of policy formation in a manner more comprehensive than that of any other single volume on the subject.' (Canadian Journal of Political Science) '[A] masterful and meticulously documented new study.' (Choice) About the Author Ninette Kelley works for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). Michael Trebilcock holds the Chair in Law and Economics in the Faculty of Law at the University of Toronto.
