From Brand: NYU Press : The Unpredictable Constitution before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Unpredictable Constitution:

The Unpredictable Constitution brings together a distinguished group of U.S. Supreme Court Justices and U.S. Court of Appeals Judges, who are some of our most prominent legal scholars, to discuss an array of topics on civil liberties. In thoughtful and incisive essays, the authors draw on decades of experience to examine such wide-ranging issues as how legal error should be handled, the death penalty, reasonable doubt, racism in American and South African courts, women and the constitution, and government benefits. Contributors: Richard S. Arnold, Martha Craig Daughtry, Harry T. Edwards, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Betty B. Fletcher, A. Leon Higginbotham, Jr., Lord Irvine of Lairg, Jon O. Newman, Sandra Day O'Connor, Richard A. Posner, Stephen Reinhardt, and Patricia M. Wald.

"A fascinating, sophisticated glimpse into the minds of appellate judges—the judges who will encourage or oppose possible changes in our unpredictable constitution." Norman Dorsen, one of the nation's leading scholars on individual rights (as well as a successful Supreme Court advocate and long an effective President of the ACLU), has edited this volume to illustrate how judges view their tasks. The differences among them assure a gripping as well as illuminating read, especially when the nation, with a new Administration, awaits changes in judicial personnel and their impact on judicial decision making."—Gerald Gunther, William Nelson Cromwell Professor of Law, Emeritus, Stanford Law School
"These insightful and witty discussions of some of today's toughest legal issues provide an insider's view of the court's role in constitutional interpretation."—Choice
"The chapters that comprise this enormously valuable volume—including important contributions by two sitting Supreme Court Justices, seven distinguished judges of the U.S. courts of Appeals, and the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, and prefaced by a splendid introduction by Norman Dorsen—are . . . filled with wisdom and wit and, without exception, shed on our unpredictable Constitution the ever-changing light that only so well chosen and diverse a company of authors could cast on this endlessly variable and ever-puzzling subject."—Laurence Tribe, Harvard Law School
"The authors examine such issues as the death penalty, women and the Constitution, reasonable doubt in criminal cases, racism in American and South African courts, government benefits, and how courts should handle legal error."—Law Social Inquiry
About the Author Norman Dorsen was Stokes Professor of Law, New York University School of Law, the former president of the ACLU and former Chairman of the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights. He is author or editor of nine books.
